MEMORY OF THE PAST.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY E. C. WHITTON.

Do you not remember, darling,
The days of long ago?
Ere Father Time had bent our forms,
Or turned our hair to snow.
Before we knew what sorrow meant,
Or had a thought of woe,
Do you not remember, darling,
You loved me, long ago?

Do you ne'er recall, my darling,
As Life's relentless tide
Is bearing us so swiftly
To the unknown other side,
Our happy days of courtship,
Before your love had died?
Do you ne'er recall, my darling,
You were my promised bride?

Do you ne'er remember, darling,
Your words when last we met?
Though many years have passed us by,
I never can forget:
"Fidelity" and "love" and "truth"
Are mine in memory yet.
Do you ne'er recall them, darling?
Have you never known regret?

THE STAR'S HUSBAND.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY LULU PRIOR.

"There's the Hoodoo!" whispered Joe Charlter, as I, the ingenue of the company, tripped on the stage in answer to my cue. My eye roamed over the "boggary array of empty boxes," and rested on the figure of a man, a thick set, carelessly attired person of decidedly seafaring rig. He was the one so jocularly alluded to by our funny man. That he was a bird of ill omen, however, or in any way responsible for the bad business of our company, was not so sure as the wits would have it appear. During the seven weeks we had been on the road supporting our society star the public had not given us money enough to pay even half our expenses; but I noticed that when we were all but stranded the uncouth figure of the sailor man always appeared, and soon after salaries and all expenses were paid.

Our star, Sylvia Revere, was a beautiful woman, highly educated and refined, but without a spark of talent—one of that class which ten years ago paraded the dramatic circuits confident of attaining at once the supreme heights of dramatic fame through the propulsive force of money. The seafaring "hoodoo" was supposed to be an infatuated admirer of hers, who followed her over our rugged route. That she should have such a lover pursuing her about the country seemed supremely ridiculous, and some of the wicked young men of our company went so far as to declare that the lady had hired him to perform the part of infatuated admirer, adding the wish that she might entrust the role to one of them, just to see how much better he would play it.

The lover aforesaid, if such he was, did not bear the beauty marks peculiar to the young chap who generally goes mad at the first sight of a pretty actress, and dogs her over the dramatic circuits. This one, indeed, violated all the rules. First of all, he was not young; on the contrary, he was well past middle age. Then, he was homely. Oh, so homely! He had a leathery saffron face, with two flabby wrinkles hanging on either cheek, and a receding chin, which met a roll of fat that swelled up from his bull neck and joined it with scarcely a dividing ripple of adipose. Add to this a grizzled crop of short, stubby hair, a low brow, small eyes of a decidedly greenish hue, under heavy, overhanging brows, a thick set figure, and a gait that seemed the wallow of some marine monster cast on shore by some freak of wind or tide, and you have an idea of the ridiculous figure to which my attention was directed from the stage of the cold and almost empty theatre that dismal December evening.

That night at the hotel I noticed that our business manager, after being closeted with the uncouth stranger for a brief time, appeared all smiling and confident, with our entire arrears of salary, which he paid off with a flourish and a blatant importance peculiar to him. We all set upon this important personage for an explanation, but he would give us only knowing nods and portentous shrugs of the shoulder concerning the strange "backer" of our tour.

"He's a regular Ceresus, with barrels of money and his pockets full of 'sparks,'" said the chipper young agent. "Why, just see this," taking from his pocket and holding up to the light a quality set gem, with ragged slag work around it, as if it had been torn from some magnificent tiara. "He fell short ten dollars on the salaries, and he hung this to me to make it square. What do you think of a backer like that for a show?"

Then our slung young manager returned the mutilated ornament to his waistcoat pocket with a fondling roll between his fingers.

"What do I think?" growled the first old man, an incontinent grumbler, "why, there's only one thing to think—our backer's a burglar."

"A burglar?" gasped all, in as grand a unison as we could have achieved had we rehearsed the exclamation for a week.

"Yes, a burglar," he repeated, enjoying our horror, "or a highwayman, or a train robber, or some thing of that sort; for I'll leave it to all of you if he doesn't look it."

Indeed he did, now we came to look at it in that light. We were speechless with horror at this dreadful idea. He saw it, and maliciously added: "And some day we're going to be stranded, and my lady's highwayman isn't going to turn up with any swag. He'll be in jail. And then there'll be a promenade for us. Walk home? Not any for your uncle. He's on the lookout now for his sleeper towards the land of the rising sun."

Then the old wretch hobbled off to the bar room, in evident glee that he had left us in such a gloom of horror and apprehension.

"By the old Harry!" exclaimed the business manager, who had grown ghastly pale as these ideas had been forced into his brain, "I'm not going to miss a chance. If I find any detective on our trail I'll make him divide the reward, or we don't deliver the goods. There's nothing like sticking to business ideas in the toughest circumstances as well as the best."

As I was making my way towards my room, later in the night, I encountered the agent prowling along the narrow hallway that led to the suite of rooms occupied by our star.

"More mystery," he whispered. "What do you think? He's in there."

"He? Who?"

"Why our burglar; and they're quarrelling. She's kicking against his following her, as far as I can make out, and there's going to be an explosion, sure."

even breathing time. So, when Mr. H. Cecil Randolph staggered across the door of the parlor and steadied himself against the lounge, he was too much impressed by this exhibition of power to give way to resentful impulses, if he had any. Sadly flustered, he sought only to smooth his rumpled raiment, and awaited his fate with what stoic dignity he could command.

"Curse you!" exclaimed Mr. Jukes, coarsely, as he slammed the door to and locked it. "When you visit one come in, don't stand listening at the door. This is only a family jar, and I'm going to take you into my confidence anyway, so you may as well be present to hear all I've got to say. This here woman"—he waved his hand towards the remote end

"About me? Why how could I give cause for jealousy? The lady will tell you —"

"Jealousy? Who says anything about jealousy?" broke in Jukes with a snort expressive of impatient scorn.

"I wanted to take you into partnership with me in my business and make your fortune; not because I love you, for I don't love no human that breathes—they ain't worth it, not even her, since I've seen how ungrateful she is—but because I must have the use of your education, which I ain't got none myself, and this time I can't get along without it."

Randolph felt quite grateful to the star for having refused to admit him into partnership with such a questionable character as her husband, but his sen-

no risk, no nothin'; and that's what I'm going to do for you."

"Do not tell him this, do not humiliate me so far!" pleaded the tearful queen of tragedy, quite overwhelmed by the promise of the revelations, whatever they might be.

Randolph jumped at the opportunity to suggest that he might depart, and no more might be revealed, since it was likely to be so unpleasant to the lady, and not at all interesting to him.

"Sit down, both of you, and listen!" commanded Jukes. "My fine lady there and I will both be shut off from our wealth, right away, if I don't get a partner soon. You're my man, and you must hear."

Poor Sylvia burst into tears, and sobbed pitifully throughout the following recital, covering her eyes with her hands, and resting her head upon the table. The rough old sea monster gave her a sharp but sympathetic glance, and proceeded at once to his confession, as he called it.

"I was born in Western Pennsylvania, long ago. Never mind dates and figures. I was a bad boy, I was a bad young man, and I'm a tough citizen at any age, for I haven't grown no better with years scarring and weighing me down. In the war times I served with disgrace in the army and discredit in the navy. I don't know which is worse, my war record or my peace record. As I am, it's just here—I'm an all around bad one, tryin' to do good with the aid of money. I tell you this to let you know that my character, all the way back, isn't my strong point, and that's why I want to use yours. So, now you understand, we'll drop it, for I'm touchy on taking up records. There was a pal of mine in the same ship with me in the war times—old Bill Ovington. He was almost as bad as me. We was in disgrace together in war, and in jail together in civil times. He took me into his confidence one day, just as I take you now. He was a ways ravin' about an old sailor man friend of his, who, when he was dyin', said he had located Captain Kidd's treasure, and left my pal maps and bearings and descriptions in writing to find it. I didn't believe in the dead old pirate and Bill's mummeries and divinit' tools, and all that, thinkin' if there were anything buried at all it was only some small swag not worth the trouble of recoverin'."

"It took a long time for Bill to get me to understand this fairy nonsense, but one day I did give in, and agreed to help him search, just to shut him up on his perpetual yarn. The place where Bill's map located the swag were way up on the Connecticut shore of the Sound, so we couldn't reach it easy, and that's one reason I let myself be persuaded at all. So me and Bill sneaked on to the trucks of an outgoing train, and at a late hour one rainy night were dragged away in the direction of New Haven. Well, Bill had all his bearin's in black and white and knew just where he was plottin' me; so there was some consolation in that, though the ridin' were mighty rough. It seemed to me that we had been goin' about a hundred hours, and I had lost about all my patience, when the train slowed down in a gloomy spot, and finally came to a standstill."

"Jump!" says Bill. "There's a bridge ahead, and they're only waitin' for the signal to go ahead."

"I jumped, so did Bill, and there we stood, covered with dust, in the ditch beside the train, while it began to move slowly ahead. We had just scrambled up to the track as the red light on the rear car was rounding the curve and went out of sight. Then there was an awful shriekin' of whistles, and lookin' ahead, we saw the red light reappear again. The freight train was backin' down fast. We jumped aside, and when it had nearly reached us we saw the headlight of another train come rushing on it at full speed. There was an awful crash and the air was full of hissing missiles. I lay there stunned till Bill, who was the first up, shook me and shouted into my ear, 'My God! It's a passenger train, and they're all dead!'"

"We ran to the wreck. The scene made me sick, but Bill and me worked hard dragging out the wounded from the burning cars. At last when we thought we had done all we could, and stopped to rest. We heard a faint cry coming from the pile of twisted iron and splinters. We tugged away until we reached the woman, an elegantly togged one, who was all tangled up in the ruins with the fire springing up all around her. She held a squalling baby in her arms, and begged us to save it. Bill seized it and laid it on one side while we worked like beavers to get the mother out. She was plucky as handsome, and with her grit she managed to hold out for ten minutes till we hauled her out all scorched and mangled, and then what does she do but faint on our hands."

"She'll die if she stays here," says Bill. Let's take her to some house, and with that we took her and the baby in our arms and carried them across the fields to a distant house, guided by a light which was shinin' in one of the windows although it was about three in the mornin'. We found it a big stone mansion, somewhat neglected, but showin' signs that it had been something once. We kicked at the door, and an old woman with an ugly scowl on her face opened a window to ask us what we wanted. We told her of the accident, and what we were carryin'. She was a brave woman, she were for, though we were two hard lookin' cases, she believed us the first time, and hurrying to the door, let us in—me, Bill, the baby and the lady we had rescued."

"We took 'em right into the lighted room, a sort of shabby parlor, and laid them on a lounge which was there all handy. The old woman took the lady into her arms. There was a young woman in the room, too, seated on a rockin' chair, huggin' another baby. She didn't seem to notice us, but just hugged her baby and went on rockin' to and fro. She was a cryin' too—I noticed that. The old woman told us to hurry back and bring any more of the wounded we could, and she would throw open the house to them, and have breakfast ready for us when we returned. You see she had been eyeing us, and sized up our quality pretty straight. I noticed the hurry the old one was in to hustle us out of the house, and it roused our curiosity; so, when we had run, with a great noise, down the gravel path to the gate, we crept back softly, and, climbing upon a water butt at a corner of the house, we peered into the lighted room."

"The old woman was shakin' the injured lady and

Helen Bertram

I hurried on, but paused a short distance down the corridor, curious to see the outcome of this state of affairs. The spy little agent made his way confidently through the narrow passage to the door of my lady's parlor, evidently lured on by some interesting conversation which was intelligible to him, but which came to my ears only as a dull hum.

Suddenly a panic seemed to have stricken him. He turned as if to retreat, but the door of the parlor was thrown open suddenly, letting out a brilliant flood of light, and the man we called our burglar came forth with a bound. Seizing the young eavesdropper by the collar, he dragged him into the apartment and the door was closed after them with a bang.

The next morning we all arose late to find letters addressed to each member of the company from the dapper agent. These missives enclosed two weeks' advance salary for each of us, and announced that the season was ended.

The "star" and the highwayman had taken flight by an early train, after placating us with what we could not help regarding as our share of the "swag," and, wonderful to relate, the agent had gone with them. The others all thought he was carrying out his business idea, and had gone intent on plotting the star's admirer to jail for the reward; but I, who held my peace as to what I knew, had dreadful suspicions that he had been kidnapped.

It was five long years after that the story of the events that led up to and followed that night came to my ears. How I learned them matters not. Here they are:

Mr. H. Cecil Randolph, our tidy little business agent, was no more than a dainty, though noisy, little pug in the jaws of a hideous mastiff when he fell into the clutches of Phil Jukes—that was the name of our burglar, as we all had learned—and where he was yanked he had to go without of the parlor, where, standing proudly erect, with an angry glitter in her eye, the tragic Sylvia stood—"Is disobedient. She wants to ruin me after all I've done for her, and won't be persuaded now."

The little man was desperate, and looked about for a straw to clutch at. His eye fell on the electric button which communicated with the office. It was on his side of the room. He darted towards it. Sylvia gave a cry and commanded him to stop.

"What are you doing?" she demanded.

"I'm going to summon assistance and have you relieved of this ruffian's presence."

H. Cecil Randolph felt much better and braver with his finger on the alarm that would summon reinforcements.

Jukes burst into a coarse laugh.

The star cast a pleading look on the unwilling visitor as she said, "Do not call. I beg of you."

"No!" inquired Randolph, in perfect bewilderment. "But this man annoys you—he is abusive—threatening—dangerous. He is —"

Jukes laughed hoarsely again.

"Tell him," said he.

"He is my husband," growled Sylvia.

"Your husband?" gasped the dapper one; "Oh, Lord!" And he staggered against the wall, and from that rest slid into a convenient chair, where he sat speechless and in open-eyed wonder.

"Now then, that there's some understanding," said the monster who had thus proven his right to wrangle with the beauty, "let us get ahead with our business. What do you suppose our little row was about tonight?"

"I'm sure I couldn't say," faintly murmured the much crestfallen young man.

"It was about you!" This with a stern look of those greenish little eyes that made H. Cecil Randolph quiver, and wish he had never undertaken to plot a "society" star over the shoals of the dramatic circuits.

sations were still unpleasant. Partnership with a suspected burglar! He, the hustler who had promised himself half the reward when the blood-hound of the law should run down his game. He felt a big lump rising in his throat as he began to realize his terrible predicament.

"My dear sir," said he, "you honor me highly with your confidence, but I assure you I have quite as much business on my hands as I can attend to comfortably, and there is no necessity for you and the lady I have the honor to represent personally to quarrel about me. In short, I am very well pleased with affairs as they are."

"Are you, now? Well, blow me if I am," roared Jukes, puffing up in the neck and face until it seemed he was going to inflate like a balloon, with raging gasses, and go furiously bobbing against the ceiling. "If you think it's fun, young man, to throw out dollars by the thousand for a woman's whim, whilst other thousands lie to hand, all ready for the taking, but never gained because of her stubbornness, you're mistaken. I ain't no such fool as that, and you want to know it, right away, here, now, this blessed minute, so's we'll be set on the proper footing for business. I don't expect you to go blind into this business. Just hear me talk, and then you can say yes or no. I don't think you're a fool, so I don't expect you to say no; but if you do, you'll keep a dead secret all I confess to you in what I'm going to say. If you don't, it will be the worse for you."

H. Cecil Randolph squirmed under the basilisk glance that shot from the shadow of those overhanging brows.

"I'm a gentleman," he piped, "and I can be trusted with a secret."

"I've known gentlemen that couldn't be, as well as men of my sort," growled the old sea dog, "but if ever one of this cursed race can be trusted it's when you're offering him a fortune for no out'ry."

WORLD PLAYERS

—Robert D. Hyde, proprietor and manager of Hyde's Comedy Co., writes as follows from Cincinnati, Oct. 28: "My ad. in THE CLIPPING of Oct. 20 brought me the largest number of applications I have ever received, and I must say that it is the only paper on earth for managers. I am doing the best business I have done in five years. I have now three companies touring in Ohio, and all are making money. Louis Baldock has Company No. 2 in good running order, and is turning people away nightly. Jos. F. Willard has the management of Company No. 3, and reports the best prospects for the same. It is my intention to put out two more companies in a couple of weeks."

—Lora Madison Child has signed with Manager W. S. Reeves to play the leading part in "Hands Across the Sea," opening Nov. 6.

—A Wild E. H. closed the tour Oct. 27.

—The McCoy Sisters have been engaged by John H. Russell for his comedians, in "A Review."

—R. A. Osborn is at his home, Beatrice, Neb., slowly recovering from an attack of malaria fever contracted in Texas.

—John T. Tierney is doing the character of McFadden in "The Hustler," the part formerly played by John Kernell.

—Katheryn Lipton Gordon, professionally known as Hazel Hart, is a divorcee from Jackson, Ohio, Oct. 17.

—Mrs. Wm. J. Scanlon has been granted an order in the Superior Court of this State permitting her to dispose of her husband's title and interest in "Mayonara," and has been ordered to sell to Augustus Tilton the sole right of production of the play.

—Sydney Reed intends to produce "The Bachelor's Boy," a new comedy, in Richmond, Va., Nov. 6.

—Frederick Krynol will be in the cast.

—It is reported that Mrs. Leslie Carter intends to return to the stage.

—Marie Kinzie has added "Dangers of a Great City" to her repertoire, and played it for the first time Oct. 27, at Ottawa, O., where she assumed the role of the tough girl. Kinzie appears as the Irish and the Jew. Miss Kinzie thinks the play will prove a winner.

—Carl Brehm, manager of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," was presented with a gold headed cane by his company on his birthday, after which a banquet was served.

—Hattie Starr (Mrs. Chas. L. Harris) has written an opera for De Wolf Hopper. The subject is entirely new, and it is said has never been treated in opera or play. The music is by Harry H. Hopper. The score will be published by W. Witmark & Sons, with whom Miss Starr has signed a six years' contract.

—Roster of Prof. G. F. Shaw's Challenge Band, with Dave E. Lewis, "Uncle John Sprague," Co. Prof. G. F. Shaw, clarinet; Richard Bothe and W. R. Comp, cornets; Chas. Prokop, baritone; Frank Wilkens and Ed. Stanford, slide trombones; Prof. W. E. Hohenstein and John Farrell, saxes; O. L. Fox and J. Kreitz, tenors; A. M. Madison, bass; J. S. Sylvester, drums; and Frank S. Thacker, tuba. The band is making a specialty of descriptive overtures.

—Edwin P. Hilton, manager of Edith Willard, in "The Little Speculator," was a Chicago call Nov. 2. Mr. Hilton says he has finished his tour through New England, where he was very successful, and has duplicated the good impression made there, at Rochester and New York cities. His attraction plays at Harborside, Rochester, and Albany, three nights this week, opening election night and reading returns, and the advance sale was very heavy. He will then play Syracuse and some Pennsylvania cities, and the People's Theatre, New York, for a week in December. The members of the company have made hits and all indications point to "The Little Speculator" being a bona fide success. Mr. Hilton will be in New York for some days.

—Oliver Lauder has rejoined the "Little Trille" Co. as stage manager.

—R. E. Strong, of Buffalo, N. Y., will leave for Cleveland, O., Nov. 6, where his sister, Florence Germaine, of the J. K. Emmet Co., will hold a reception for him at the Hollenden Hotel.

—Jack J. Kett, comedian, left the Carrie Lamont Co. at Beaumont, Tex., and opened with Hunt's Comedy Co. at Clinton, Mo., Nov. 5. Mr. Kett and his partner, Chris. Kett, will start jointly next season in a farce comedy, entitled "The Merry Tramp."

—The Cotton King, now playing in Boston, comes to this city this winter, for an indefinite run.

—William A. Brady has copyrighted the play entitled "A Bowers Girl," a melodramatic production, which he intends to produce immediately after Christmas.

—Sherman Brown has sold his interest in "Of the Earth" to Manager Davidson, of Davidson's Theatre, Milwaukee, Wis.

—Julia Marlowe has accepted an arrangement of Browning's play, "Colombe's Birthday," by Rose Fyttinge and S. Ada Fisher.

—Charles Frohman has completed arrangements for the appearance of John Drew in London next April. His supporting company, including Mrs. Adams, has been engaged, and he will present "The Butterflies," "The Masked Ball," and a new play now being written for him by an English author. His London season will continue until the middle of July.

—Manager Robt. B. Clarke has secured James F. Smith to write a four act melodrama for his star, Robt. F. Parkinson, which will shortly be produced in cities only. Harry B. Clarke, musical performer, recently joined the Clarke P. & Benson Co. The company report good business through Missouri and Kansas.

—Martinsville, Ind., Notes: At Hite & Park's Opera House, Oct. 25, the Altman Concert Co. played to a full house. Oct. 26, the "Uncle Hiram" Co. played to a full house; Oct. 27, the "St. Patrick" Co. played to a full house, and people were turned away.

—The Fulton Bros. are doing well in "The Colonel and I" Co. Business reported to be more than up to expectations. The company finish New England week of Nov. 26-Dec. 1, and then go directly West, where they are booked in all week stands.

—Fred C. Reed requests us to report the report that he had joined J. C. Hooley's Co.

—Clayton E. White has joined "A Summer Breeze" Co.

—The Pina Bonina Co., having closed, Nell Hightfield, Yankee comedian, is resting at his home in Hartwood, O.

—Notes from the Baldwin Rogers Comedy Co.: We are out again making our Florida tour, and business is good, considering everything. We carry fourteen people, live band and orchestra. Orlando joined the company at Tallahassee, Fla., for the season. He has been sick at his home at Houston, Tex., for several weeks and his friends will be glad to hear he is well again and doing well for the Rogers Sisters.

—Notes from Frank Tucker's Comedy Co.: At the close of a good week's business at the Opera House, Clarks, O., Manager J. W. Houser, of the house, found red the company on elaborate banquet. The celebration took place on the stage and was a very merry affair. The members of the company who partook of the feast were: C. P. Cowd, J. Knox Gavin, M. A. Hunt, Gen. Robbins, Tom Martin, Barton Schermerhorn, the Aron Quartette, O. W. Dietrich, Jane McBrury, Gerrie Robbins, Varen Ball and Ethel Tucker. The staff of the house, including Manager Houser, was also present.

—Staff L. Pixley, business manager of the "White Squadron" Co., was thrown from a horse Oct. 24, at Troy, N. Y., and sustained injuries about the face and body, including a broken nose, but fortunately was not disfigured.

—E. J. Auman and Nelson Roberts have purchased from Mosley, Curry & Fisher the right to present "The Passing Show" in towns which are not to be visited by the original New York Co. the tour of which will be under the control of Canary & Ledetter.

—C. D. Henry, agent for Leonard Bradley, writes us that the "Circus Girl" Co., which stranded recently at Philmont, N. Y., was Miss Bradley's Co., Messrs. Harper & Taylor, managers, and not L. L. Greene's Co., as was erroneously reported.

—It was the Theatrical Mechanical Association of St. Louis, Mo., and not the Theatrical Brotherhood of that city which recently suffered from embezzlement.

—Nep Sweeney informs us that he will take the road about Nov. 8. He has been visiting relatives in Bay City, Mich.

—Martin Franklin, of the "Coon Hollow" Co., was taken seriously ill at Castro, Ill., and was left there at the Holyday House, Oct. 26. The place was filled by Clara Oils, who joined the company at Seymour, Ind., Oct. 31. In the meantime the place was acceptedly taken by the musical director.

—The Melville Sisters, Ida and Rose, who are doing an unique specialty entitled "Two Little Jays" in "Little Christopher Columbus" at the Garden Theatre, this city, are engaged for the entire run of the piece.

—Robert Fulford, the husband of the late Annie Pixley, arrived in London, Ont., with the ashes of his wife, whose body was cremated in England shortly after her death there about a year ago. Mr. Fulford intends to have the ashes interred beside the remains of their only child.

—Roster of Glick's Comedy Co.: Addie Mason, Leila Douglass, Mrs. H. T. Glick, Jessie Dalton, G. M. Bracklin, Leo Shuler, J. J. Welch, Wm. Mason, Harry Clark and Harry T. Glick, manager.

—Notes from Gray & Woodhull's "Aunt Sally" Co.: We are now on our twelfth week and have yet to find a losing week. "Billy" Gray is making a hit with his songs and comedy work. Mr. Woodhull will manage the company from his New York office, and at the same time attend to the booking of his other attractions for next season. George E. Cooper, joined the company at Saratoga, N. Y., as treasurer.

—Alice Kemp is with the Buff Comedy Co.

—Geo. Gregory has engaged Cook and Howard, Thos. M. Le Sudo, Geo. Kane, Dorothy Sisters, Frank Gransell, Lizzie Lorraine, and Jennie Gordon for his new "Happily Ever After" Co.

—Roster of Dunford & Benton's Comedy Co.: James W. Forrest, A. R. Cray, H. Webb Chamberlain, D. H. Cray, W. U. Reed, O. Rockaford, Con. Melch, E. L. Boyce, W. J. Barnard, J. L. Shoemaker, Frank Lawrence, Chas. Ada Young, Geo. G. L. Lockholder, Dan D. Rah, Lillian Price, Dush Zublin, Marguerite Cray, Lillian Pollock; Rals A. Lockholder, proprietors; H. A. Dunford, manager; James W. Forrest, stage manager; Con. Melch, musical director; E. L. Boyce, comedian; D. Ward, master properties.

—Roster and Notes of The New York Players: We opened our season at Springfield, N. Y., Nov. 1, to the banner business of the season, with everything running as smoothly as a clock. The company is in four New York State, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and the West. We are booked solid for twenty-one weeks, with first class prospects of a successful season. The roster is as follows: Ralph Dean, stage director; E. J. Larkine, assistant stage director; D. J. Kelley, treasurer; W. J. Hayes, Sidney E. Pison, E. C. Kennedy, Jack McKenney, Tom Cary, Prof. W. H. Byron, Tom Nev is the agent in advance; Lou Gardner, Alan Addison, Florence St. Clair, and Master Edith Fox, are the comedians.

—Notes from the John L. Sullivan Co.: Immense business is being done and everybody happy. John J. Howard, our business manager, was married in Boston, Mass., last week to Hattie Blanchard, and is now receiving the congratulations of his friends. John L. and company and other friends and relations all attended the wedding, and Mr. and Mrs. L. received many presents. All well and prosperous.

—Mrs. Lillian Steward has presented her husband with a baby boy. Mother and child are doing well.

—Miss Cecil Watson is now convalescent, after a protracted and serious illness.

—F. M. Briggs has joined Daisie Markoe's "U. T. Co." Co. as business representative.

—E. S. Burgett closed with the A. R. Miller Co. week of Oct. 22 at Dubuque, Ia.

—Notes from the Carey Comedy Co.: We are doing a big business, and the "S. R. O." sign is brought into frequent use.

—Lucien Becker joined the Andy Amann "A Clean Sweep" Co., at Charleston, Ill., as musical director. He came direct from Germany, where he is informed.

DEATHS IN THE PROFESSION.

EUGENE ESPERANCE OUDIN, the well known baritone singer, died Nov. 4, at his home in London Esg., from paralysis with which he was stricken two weeks ago. The deceased was born in 1858 in this city. As a child he evinced a liking for music, and he became an accomplished pianist.

and as long as he was old enough he became a soprano in Dr. Tyndal's church. For a number of years prior to his going upon the stage he was a baritone of St. Stephen's Roman Catholic Church. In the meantime he was a student of law and in 1879 he was admitted to the bar of this State, when he entered the office of Evans & Thompson, which then occupied the corner of for himself and practised on his own account for about three years. In May, 1886, he went to England, where Lady Randolph Churchill opened for him a prosperous career as a salon singer, and he sang at the houses of many of the nobility. While in London he was engaged by John McCall and made his

John McCaull had made his debut on the operatic stage Aug. 30, 1880, at Palmer's Theatre, this city with the McCaull Opera Co., appearing as Montano in "Josephine Sold by Her Sisters," and was successful from the first. About two years after his coming upon the stage he married Louise Parker, also an able singer, who made her professional debut at the same theatre.

Several years ago he and his wife, went to England, where the deceased was again frequently heard at private entertainments. His voice was high baritone of pure tone and sympathetic quality, and his talents won him a position in the highest social circles. In London he was induced to return to the United States.

induced to return to the stage and he created part in Sullivan's "Ivanhoe" and met with success in Tchaikow's opera, "Eugene Onegin," which was produced in London in 1892. Recently Mr. Quinn had devoted himself entirely to concert singing. He made his first appearance at Moscow last Winter in a series of symphonic concert and song recitals with the orchestra.

and was received with enthusiasm. It was to have appeared this season at both Moscow and St. Petersburg. He had composed many ballads, and was also the author of the opera "Zaida." He translated into English Nidor's famous songs from the French. He also translated the songs of Gounod and Bizet, the former of whom was his personal friend. He was was his personal friend. He translated his operas and arranged the orchestration for them. He not only possessed a voice of unusual quality, but showed marvelous taste and training, and was fairly entitled to claim rank as an artist. His wife, a son and a daughter survive him.

URIAH ROFFLER, who had held the position of state geologist of the Massachusetts stage doorkeeper at the Lyceum Theatre, this citizen since the house was opened, died Nov. 2, 1897, at his home. The deceased was born in Switzerland in 1826. He served in the Swiss army and came to this country in 1850, and located in Texas where he was employed as surveyor for several years. In 1857 he came to this city and was employed at the Metropolitan Hotel as a porter and porter.

L. D. D., London.—1. Fifteen dollars per week. 2. At the salary.

THAM.—1. Forty dollars per week. 2. Salary.

C. D., San Jose.—You will find that all good writers will require a deposit before undertaking to write a sketch.

W. G. H., Manhattan.—We do not think the act has ever been done, and it should command seventy five dollars per week, upwards. You would not need the big face turn.

G. K. M., St. Louis.—Probably eighty dollars a week at first, with prospect of considerable increase when you are known.

ILLINOIS ATTORNEY, Dubuque.—Send two copies of the play, with title page printed or type written, together with one dollar, to the Librarian of Congress, Washington, D. C.

R. R.—1. See answer to J. and J. in this issue. 2. In Europe.

P. A., Chicago.—Address the party in care of THE CLIPPER.

L. G. S., De Kalb.—1. Yes, if your act is good. 2. Probably forty dollars per week. 3. The act is not at all rare.

Miss L., Detroit.—The party is not with "Wang" this season. It is possible to give correct points of companies so far, as they are subject to changes. Watch our route list.

MUSICIAN, Liverpool.—1. Fifteen dollars and expenses. 2. Twenty-five dollars.

D. O. C., Kentucky.—1. The royalty varies according to the fame of the composer.

H. M., Shiner.—Address Frank Harding, 229 Bowery, this city. You cannot use another's music.

A. S. M., Detroit.—Address letter in care of James J. Aronson, 100 Union Street, this city.

J. and J.—Wood's Gymnasium, 6 East Twenty-eighth Street, this city.

W. R., Lock Haven.—We can supply the copy you desire.

H. H., Shiner.—Address the party in care of THE CLIPPER.

J. H., Washington.—We are unable to furnish either of the addresses. Address letters in our care.

E. H. L., Chicago.—We have no knowledge of the whereabouts of the party. Address letter in care of THE CLIPPER.

R. G., Goshen.—Address Frank Harding, 229 Bowery, this city.

S. M., Andover.—1. Adam Forepaugh Jr. is the only surviving child of his father, the late Adam Forepaugh. 2. The Barnum Show opened in this city in 1881, on March 11, for five weeks, closing April 19. It opened two days later in Philadelphia, for two weeks.

C. M. G., New Bern.—We do not know the whereabouts of the party. Address letter in our care, and it will be answered in our next issue.

G. F. R.—See our route list in this issue.

FRANK, Birmingham.—Address a letter in care of THE CLIPPER.

E. H., Providence.—You neglect to state whether you mean business director or musical director, but in either case the salary should be from twenty-five dollars per week upwards, with transportation only.

LEONARD, Cincinnati.—1. Fifteen dollars per week. 2. We cannot give a description of yourself, and state the kind of experience you have had.

E. T. C., Chicago.—Watch our route list or address letter in our care.

SUSANNE, Shenandoah.—1. Forty dollars per week. 2. We do not need a correspondence.

BILLY, Tuscaloosa.—1. We cannot name any price. Inquire of managers of companies. 2. See advertisement at the head of this column.

L. and F., Baltimore.—We know the party, but cannot obtain his address. Address letter in our care.

H. H.—A copyright costs one dollar. It is granted for a term of twenty-eight years and may be renewed by the author, or his widow or children, for a further term of fourteen years.

K. M. J., Sonoma.—1. We do not know the party. 2. The play is already on the road.

T. H. M., Co.—Address letter to Mrs. G. M. Tom Thum, in care of THE CLIPPER. She is touring somewhere in the West and has the carriage with her.

F. J. F., Denver.—1. We know of no work of the kind. 2. There is not. 3. That is a matter of individual judgment. 4. The arena only is bare.

CAIDS.

F. M. M., Yarmouth.—In the game of forty eyes the dealer must deal two cards at a time, and then three at a time, or vice versa, to the players, but whichever course is adopted must be adhered to until the deal is completed. The dealer must not deal two cards to one player, three to the next, and so on.

F. H., Montreal.—1. Certainly a player can assist his partner at euchre. 2. No, a player cannot declare to play alone after his partner has assisted.

R. B. H., Norristown.—According to the number in which the queen is played in New York, the queen bet shown in the diagram plays ace, queen; in the West it plays deuce, queen, king. The same answer, varying the cards, applies to the other bet.

SUSANNE, Shenandoah.—1. It is not necessary for the player to take another trick if he has points enough to go out with his maid.

W. C., Battle Creek.—The player who held high went out first, as high takes precedence of all other points, except when the dealer turns up Jack, which counts as once.

C. C., Fairbairn.—A full hand will beat a flush, which in turn beats a straight.

J. E. E., Salem.—1. In draw poker, when a card is accidentally exposed in the draw, the player to whom it is dealt cannot accept it, but must be given the next card from the top of the pack, and before any other player to his left is helped. 2. At euchre the party having the greater number of points wins the game, the order of precedence being, as follows: great casino, little casino, majority of cards, majority of spades, aces and sweeps.

S. R. P., Lyons.—The elder hand was wrong. He cannot bluff the cards without the consent of the dealer. It must be a mutual agreement between them.

W. H. M., New York.—After the draw has been made the age, or eldest hand, has the privilege of declaring the cards, and if the other players have made their bets or passed, he should prefer to delay till after the others have acted, the first player to his left makes the first bet, or passes out.

PURKIS, St. John.—The hand with the ace at the head wins.

J. H. D., North Clarendon.—At casino a player may make two or more combinations at the same time, provided they aggregate the same number of points; or a player may make another hand, or may pass or combine other cards, or take the dealer's hand, previously to taking in his first bluff. He cannot bluff, however, except with a card from the hand.

P. G. M., Dayton.—It is correct in claiming a run of six for the last card in 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12, not being necessary that the cards should be played in their regular order to constitute a run. He also has one for the 10.

W. F. I., Keene.—Here is the rule: "If tricks are run sufficient to make game before the holder of the best trump out plays it, the tricks win the game."

S. J. J., Denver.—At faro, when the last turn shows the difference, it is evident that they can come out in six different ways. This gives the dealer five chances to one for the player, and he should pay five for one; but, as that would leave the house no percentage, he pays four for one, thus gaining that percentage.

C. W., New York.—In a two-handed game of pinochle a player can meld 40 trumps, and on taking a trick can meld 150 trumps, but he cannot meld the extra 40 without king and queen.

A. W. E., St. Charles.—If a player wins the game, going out of jack, which takes precedence of pedro.

M. J. J., San Francisco.—The bet is on, owing to the misdeal.

A. C., Franklin.—The cards show for themselves, no matter what a player may call his hand, and the best poker hand wins. Every hand must be shown on call.

HASHBALL, CHICKEN, ETC.

J. R. K., Toronto.—A tournament took place Aug. 20 to 25, inclusive, 1874, at Halifax, N. S., a handsome silver cup being offered as a prize for the championship of America being won by a team selected from the leading Philadelphia clubs, captained by D. S. Newman.

At the tournament was held Sept. 13 to 23, inclusive, at Philadelphia, Pa., and the representative team of that city then became permanent possessors of the Halifax Cup, now the emblem of the Philadelphia championship.

P. C. R., Boston.—The Cincinnati Reds, under Harry Wright's management, won the national championship in 1890, when they went through the season without losing a game. The team included Brainerd, pitcher; Alden, catcher; Gould, Swasey and Waterman, on the bases; George Wright, shortstop; and Leonard, Harry Wright and McVey in the outfield.

TURF.

SUSANNE, Zanesville.—1. The rule reads: "Bets on a match for which a dead heat is run are void." 2. When horses run a dead heat for purse or sweepstakes, and the owners divide, all bets between such horses, or between either of them and another, are settled as if they had run together, and the bet is void and voiding. 3. He would have received his own money under the foregoing rule.

L. E. H., Charleston.—The fastest pacing time, with running man, recorded is 1:57, by Ray and Jit, accomplished in a trial at the track at Chillicothe, O., Oct. 4. The fastest time by a pacer, going in single harness, but accompanied by a running horse to set the pace, is 2:01, by Robert J. Hunt at Terre Haute (regulation track), Sept. 14 last.

C. F. D., Boston.—As in the race upon which the wager was made the winner, Alce, trotted the first heat in 2:07, K. loses both bets.

W. P. H., Boston.—Trousseau beat Miss Woodford in a special race for $5,000, one mile and a quarter, at Sheep-head Bay, June 29, 1886. Trousseau finished three-quarters of a length ahead, in 2:08, 1/2. Fitzpatrick rode the winner, Jimmy McLaughlin having the mount on Miss Woodford.

E. L. C., Freeport.—The horse having been foaled in May, 1881, was ten years of age on Jan. 1 last.

AQUATIC.

D. P., New York.—The steamer Sirius left Cork, Ireland, April 1, 1882, and the steamer Great Western left Bristol, England, April 2, 1882, both arriving at New York on the 23d of the same month.

The first steamship propelled vessel that crossed the Atlantic was the Savannah, American built, 380 tons burthen. She sailed first from New York to Savannah, Ga., and thence direct to Liverpool, in July, 1819.

ATHLETIC.

L. E. H., Charleston.—1. Let us know the distance, and whether paced or unpaced, flying or standing start, and we will try and answer your question; cannot otherwise. 2. Don't know what you mean. 3. See "Turf" answers.

H. H., Boston.—Don't spare the necessary space. If you are sufficiently interested, obtain a copy of the book and examine it. The price is twenty-five cents.

DICE, DOMINOES, ETC.

H. P., Brooklyn.—A loss, because he failed to throw 11, and 12, as he was to throw 11 and 12.

S. R. R., Wheeling.—It was a four throw, and the dice should be thrown over again. It would be advisable to substitute another dice for the damaged piece, so as to prevent a recurrence of the foul.

W. H., Brown.—With bare knuckles, while Mitchell won his championship in a contest with gloves, under the Queensberry rules. Corbett is the boxing champion of the world, a title he won in a glove contest with Mitchell. The last champion pugilist of the world was John L. Sullivan, who won the title by defeating Jake Kilrain in a fight under the regular rules.

CONSTANT READER, Peoria.—We cannot give Tom Sawyer's exact weight the day he fought John C. Heenan, but it was undoubtedly over 160 lb.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SUSANNE, Washington.—The fastest time in which the run from New York City to Albany, 143 miles, has been made over the New York Central Railroad is 2h. 19m. 43s., by an engine and three heavy cars, Sept. 14, 1891.

R. J., Boston.—The side bearing a likeness of Queen Victoria is the head of the piece.

G. E. R., Fort Niagara.—THE CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1894 was issued in January last. The 1895 issue will appear early in January next. The price is twenty-five cents. It contains all records.

J. A. T., Boston.—The steamship Great Eastern visited New York on two different occasions. The first time she arrived at Sandy Hook at 7:30 A. M., June 28, 1860, and she afterwards laid in the North River, at the occasion of her second visit she came through Long Island Sound.

C. E. J., Silvertown.—1. The term of office of the governor of New York State is two years. 2. Governor Flower was elected in the same year as President Cleveland.

Dr. T. M. M., Delevan.—We have data concerning your queries, and we would if any one has the figures. The census does not furnish the information.

A. C. R., Dubuque.—The treasurer is wrong. The dance committee, having power to act, properly paid the bills, and the treasurer should accept from them the net proceeds, as he can be held responsible only for such money as he comes to by his hand, and this amount would be shown in the committee's report.

L. V., Portsmouth.—Both are wrong. The system of voting in New York State at present is by the modified form of the Australian ballot. The names of the candidates of the several parties are printed together on separate ballots and one for each party is given to the voter, who retires to a booth and prepares them. He can vote for one or more names of those of candidates for whom he does not wish to vote by either passing over or scratching out the objectionable names, and writing others in their place. The old system of single ballots for each candidate is done away with.

E. W. E., Washington.—Address A. L. Ashman, Sinclair House, New York, for information.

CIORESE, Buffalo.—C is not in it. A and B are jointly entitled to first and second prizes, and may either draw or throw their waste basket, whence they draw the winning card.

H. M.—The word "birthday" literally means the day of birth, and if thus employed do one could have more than one in a lifetime. By common usage, however, the term is used to mean the anniversary of birth, which phrase in our terminology, and hence a child one year old will have but one birthday.

JOHN K.—1. $3. 2. $4.

To Correspondents.

L. S. ATKINSON, Tilton, N. H.—Thank you cordially for the attention of the paper giving the latest news.

W. H. Manchester.—The answer to your note re Mr. Bone's problem gladly received; thank you.

Geo. K. R. W. T. W.—We overtook your note last week, excuse us. We have no loose German chess columns, and as for "cranky ones"—well, they are promptly dropped into our capacious waste basket, whence they speedily go the way of all cranks.

Dr. P. A. LUTKEMAN.—Welcome back! Crowd along with the table tennis boys, and make room for an old and prized friend returned.

JO. DE NEY.—I was your last three or four brought Dr. H. back to familiar chair, and with gratifying compliments to you.

Bro. NINA FRITZ, Paris.—Our best thanks are hereby rendered for the copy of your chess column, which may be second edition, greatly enlarged and perfected, a work equally elegant and excellent. We purpose a complete review of the contents.

Now Let Them Come.

As this issue of THE CLIPPER is as near the 13th inst as any, we now open our contribution door to receive donations for the tourney in our columns as may be ready. This notice, too, we serve as a warning to any not yet quite satisfied with their work to give the best they can, and forward their contributions to the editor, until we announce the closing day.

Receiving entries any amendments of the problems in hand, and the editor will be glad to receive them on the diagrams. The "drawers" address will be kept open at least one month longer, perhaps six weeks.

A reminder by Dr. Hallett leads us to observe that, in our problem, only a few moves are needed to induce our solvers to largely replenish their stock of "mental efficiency," preparatory to their attack on the season's problems for their best work.

The British Chess Code.

This is a tentative publication in a sixpenny "pocket edition" of that long pressing desideratum, a revised and codified book of these laws. It is designed to contain the official, practical and theoretical rules of the leading masters and theorists of all nations, who are interested in so important and desirable a piece of cosmopolitan legislation, and who desire that their command universal acceptance and become a universal authority.

To be so forth, we are to the broad and through scope of the work undertaken, we give, slightly condensed, the titles of the Parts treated. This is Part I—Preliminary.

Part II—The Laws of Chess. This is the most important part of the work, and it is here that the reader will find the most complete and authoritative statement of the laws of chess, as they have been accepted by the leading masters and theorists of all nations, who are interested in so important and desirable a piece of cosmopolitan legislation, and who desire that their command universal acceptance and become a universal authority.

George Lohmann, the famous English bowler, has got the better of his pulmonary complaint, after two years' absence and sojourn in South Africa, and the doctor now gives him permission to return to England and cricket next year.

George Giffen has left the Norwood Club, of Adelaide, South Australia, for which he had played for fourteen seasons. He and Lyons will now be in different teams, which will do much for Adelaide Club cricket.

held their regular monthly meeting in this city on Monday afternoon, Nov. 5. The stewards present were Messrs. Hunter, Keene, Knapp, Sturges and Thompson. Bookmaker C. W. McCall was called by Charles B. "who Jockey Harry Jones accuses of distributing him to poll horses at Naragansett Park will be brought up for investigation before the stewards on Nov. 19. The secretaries of both Naragansett Park and the Virginia Jockey Club have been notified to refuse all entries in the future under the name of W. Woods. W. C. Daly is believed to be the owner of the horses, and, at the present time, is in the hands of the turf. Woods and Daly have both been notified to appear before the Jockey Club on Nov. 19, for investigation.

ROBERT J. AND JOHN R. GENTRY met in a match racing race at Point Breeze, Philadelphia, Pa., on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 5. A purse of $2,000 being offered, Robert J. won the heat in succession easily, and then John R. Gentry was withdrawn because of a cut on his foreleg. Time of the heats, 2:08, 2:12. Afterwards, Robert J. met and again easily defeated John R. Gentry, who at the best he could do was a poor runner.

A MATCH TURF, double teams three heats in five, for $2,500 a side, between Fred Gerken's Little Tort and Stoneridge and John Rud's Cephus and se, was decided at Elmwood Park, its city, on Nov. 2. In pre-ace of a number of drivers, Gerety's driver, Fred Fowler, moved the winners, Ruddy's team, over which he handled the ribbons, taking the second heat, time, 2:30, 2:26 1/2, 2:27, 2:29 1/2.

THE HIGHLAND STOCK FARM, near Lexington, Ky., was sold, Nov. 2, by W. C. France to H. L. Baker, a Kentucky lumber king for $75,000. The stock in part payment the trotting horse establishment as Elm Tree Farm, worth $44,000. Col. France intends to make his future home in New York, whence he went to Kentucky many years ago.

THE RACES at Narragansett Park, Providence, R. I., were postponed on Nov. 3 and 5 in consequence of rain and a resultant very muddy track. The management of the St. Asaph track decided not to race on the 5th and 6th, in order to allow the horses of the race grounds to get to home and to te.

THE RING.

A Knockout in Michigan.

A prize fight took place on Sunday, Nov. 4, about five miles from Jackson, Mich., and was witnessed about two hundred sports. The principals were Tansey, of Chicago, and Fred Cox, of Jackson, both heavyweights. Tansey weighed 187lb, and Cox 190lb. Tansey forced the fighting at first and took the lead for the first round, badly punishing Cox. In the fourth round Tansey made a tremendous rush, but was caught squarely on the side by Cox. In the fifth round Cox knocked Tansey over the ropes. Tansey came up groggy, made another rush, but was again caught by Cox, and him the jaw with a swinging under cut, knocking him out.

PREPARATIONS are being made for the forthcoming entertainment of the Atlantic Athletic Club, on Sunday evening, Nov. 19, at their arena at O'ney and, and as the array of talent they have secured is excellent, the show ought to prove a good one in sporting sense and financially satisfactory. The programme includes bouts between Jack McAuliffe and Owen Zeigler, Johnny Murphy and Paddy McDevitt, and Australia Billy Murray and Jerry Burdett. These are all men who have been in the ring and not wanting, and as we are informed, the rail ore the bell rang for the seventh round Slavin declined to avoid punishment, and, when ordered to do so, he refused. He was then subjected to a palpable foul that the referee, on appeal, immediately rendered his decision in favor of Daly. The winner was Slavin, by Frank Egan, solely on account of the foul committed by Slavin. The services of Bill Sevin, Fred Yokes, and Tom Carr, GEORGE LEEBS, of Atlantic City, and Alfred Griffiths, alias "Young Griffiths," the Australian lightweight, had at last entered into an agreement for a fight on the 12th of the month. The contest lasted for ten rounds, at 132 lbs. each. The fight was held on the 2nd of February, in either New York or Boston, Mass. Admirers of pugilism, who are aware of the reverses of both these men, would prefer to see them fight on the 12th of the month. They would like to take great interest in the result of their meeting in a limited engagement. Frank White, of this city, will have charge of the preparation of the fight, and the secretary will be in charge of the referee, careful and astute manager and trainer.

JOHNNY CREEDE, the pugilist, was charged with having stabbed Jack Skelly with a fork during a centenary in Brooklyn, N. Y., has been arrested. He was taken to the Tombs, and placed in the Tombs, Nov. 5, and placed under $500 bail for examination. George Malone, who was arrested for the same offence, was held in the same amount of bail. Skelly, at last, was improving.

JOHN WILLIAMS, the former light weight champion of Australia, defeated Bob Seated, in the second round of a glove fight at the National Sporting Club in London, Eng. Oct. 29. They fought for a purse of $1,000, and after it was over Williams cashed in $1,000.

KED PONZ, of Lancaster County, and Tom Roberts, of the City of Smoke, milled for $200 a side, using two ounce gloves, in a field near Lancaster, on the night of Oct. 30. They fought fiercely, both being severely punished, and Roberts receiving his status in the sixth round, after having had the best of the early rounds.

LYNN, of Wilmington, Del., and Boyle, of the Troops, engaged in a glove fight near Washington, D. C., on Monday evening, Nov. 3, the latter being the victor. When Boyle was hit on the shoulder, which incapacitated him from further fighting and the purse was given to Lynn.

HAS. E. DAVIES is arranging an athletic entertainment to occur at Chicago, Ill., Nov. 14, and will be the figure as the star attraction, and is expected to draw a large audience.

EUGENE TURNER, colored, of Boston, Mass., and Harry Harley, of California, fought for a purse of $10, at the Central Theatre, Denver, Col., early on morning of Nov. 3, the dusky boxer <sup>beating</sup> knocked out in the twenty-third round.

WHEELING.

Record Making in France.

On Friday afternoon, Oct. 10, M. Michel, the French rider, made an attempt to surpass the performance of Ellis for one hour on a tricycle, at the Buffalo Velodrome, Paris, France, and he proved successful, riding 265 metres further than did the Englishman at Hene Hill. His time for every kilometre from the fifth till the thirty-eighth and finish were the best recorded. Thirty-eight kilometres were ridden in 59m. 40s., and in the full hour 38 kil. 15 metres were put together. Michel was paced by a tandem team and several riders on bicycles. On Sunday, 21, there was a one hundred kilometre race at the same place, which was open to all riders, and which resulted in a grand performance, although, owing to carelessness on the part of the management, the result was unsatisfactory. Fossier had ridden on to Jules Dubois' back wheel until the bell rang for the final lap, when he sprinted, came clean away and finished over fifty yards ahead. Then it was discovered that the bell had rung one lap too late, and while the race was given off, the official declared Dubois entitled to the record for the correct distance, which Fossier might just as well have secured had the mistake not been made. The following times constitute Dubois' records, eclipsing those formerly credited to Arthur Linton, who was one of the starters on this occasion, but did not ride anywhere near up to his former form: 34 kil. 2m. 6m. 21.8s.; 35 kil. 2m. 38.5s.; 36 kil. 2m. 33.8s.; 37 kil. 2m. 11m. 57.8s.; 38 kil. 2m. 12m. 41.5s.; 39 kil. 2m. 14m. 16.5s.; 40 kil. 2m. 15m. 51.5s.; 41 kil. 2m. 17m. 26.4s.; 42 kil. 2m. 19m. 37.5s.; 43 kil. 2m. 20m. 38.5s.; 44 kil. 2m. 22m. 14.5s.; 45 kil. 2m. 23m. 48.4s.; 46 kil. 2m. 25m. 24.5s.; 47 kil. 2m. 26m. 4.8s.; 48 kil. 2m. 28m. 30.5s.; 49 kil. 2m. 30m. 15.7s.; 50 kil. 2m. 31m. 59.5s.

The International Tourney.

Manager Charles A. Sheehan, of the international bicycle tournament to be held at Madison Square Garden during Thanksgiving week, under the auspices of the Metropolitan Association of Cycling Clubs, reports that entries are coming in rapidly. All indications are that the professional twenty-four hour race, to start Friday night, will be the greatest event of the week. The entries thus far received are Arthur Linton, champion of England; M. Huret, champion of France; Chas. Colombo, champion of Italy; and Geo. H. Van Emblem, of Arlington, N. J., the champion of the United States. He remembered, took third place in last year's six day professional event. The other entries are Otto and Walter Krouse. The event is sure to attract great attention and bring out good speed.

A committee of the Metropolitan Association are preparing a reception to A. A. Zimmerman, upon his return from abroad. Zimmerman leaves Southampton with his trainer, W. B. Troy, on Saturday, Nov. 10, and will probably arrive in New York the following Friday. Troy brings over also Harry Wheeler, who has been racing in France and Italy during the past nine months; Lucien Louvet, champion of France; Arthur Linton, A. C. Edwards, M. Huret, Alexander Verheyen, of Germany, and Chas. Colombo, of Italy. The committee has chartered a steamer to go down the bay and meet the party.

More Records at Waltham.

The celebrated speed track at Waltham, Mass., was, on Nov. 2, again signified by the making of series of fresh records. Arthur Porter, of Class A, broke three world's records that Tyler had established, and cut down three other world's Class A records. Williams and Haggerty beat two more world's records and one Class A record, while Harry Tyler failed in an attempt to get below Porter's new flying start record. Porter's first attempt was a half mile, flying start, paced, making the quarter in 24.1s., faster than the Class A record; the third in 34.5s., or faster than the world's; Tyler: the half in 53s., one second faster than his own Class A time.

His next attempt was at the one mile, paced, standing start. His own Class A record was 2m. He beat that easily, and, but for a screwing of his wheel, would have clipped a slice off the world's record, 1m. 57.5s. He made the quarter in 33s., the half in 1m. 20.5s., and the two-thirds in 1m. 18.5s. This was four-fifths of a second better than Tyler's world's record on this track. He made the third quarter in 1m. 28.5s., or two-fifths seconds faster than the world's record; also by Tyler on this track. He finished the mile in 5m. 35.5s., within three-fifths seconds of the world's record, and one and four-fifths seconds faster than the Class A time.

Haggerty and Williams then rode for the paced tandem record, and made the quarter in 25.5s., the third in 34.5s., (both new world's records) and the half in 53.5s., a new Class A record.

Johnson Riding Rapidly.

Before leaving for Chillicothe, O., on Oct. 30, John S. Johnson made an attempt to create new figures for one mile, paced, over the straightaway mile course on the Tonaquanda Boulevard at Buffalo, N. Y. He proved successful, lowering Sanger's figures to 1m. 57.5s. The half mile was accomplished in 50.5s., which is also faster than the time made by Sanger at Springfield, in order that the mile might arise no question as to the correctness of the distance traveled, the course was specially surveyed previous to the trial by George W. Kohn, a civil engineer. The course began a quarter of a mile south of the starting point in his paced mile attempt the previous week, when Johnson made a new record for the paced mile. When the survey was made it was found that the course of that trial was 40.5 feet longer for the three quarters, but that last quarter was not measured. Great care was taken to make the conditions of the race such that they could not be impeached. The electric timing device was in operation. This sounded a bell at the start, the quarters and the finish, as the rider passed them, so that the timekeepers at all places could catch the quarters.

A Six Days' Bicycle Tourney.

Is to take place in Philadelphia, Pa., during the week commencing Dec. 10, and the prospects are that it will prove a successful and memorable affair, as already the managers have, we understand, received assurance from several well known long distance professional cyclists, who have achieved fame in similar events, that they will participate in the contest, which will be a six day riding of the records now standing. Tempting cash prizes will be offered, and the management promise to build a first class track and to make every provision for the comfort of contestants and the convenience of the public, upon whose patronage they depend for support. The entrance books are now open, and those desiring further particulars will address E. G. Johnson, superintendent, Hotel Brunswick, Philadelphia, Pa.

Road Records Accepted.

The Century Road Club of America have allowed the following additional minor records: L. C. Wahl, 10 miles, 25m. 50s., Oct. 15, 1903. District of Columbia record, A. G. Harding, St. Louis to De Sota, 47 miles, 3m. 3m. 5m. 13.4s., 1894. course record; T. L. Bird, 10 miles, 25m. 28s., May 20, 1894. Minnesota State record; L. W. Steinfeld, Buffalo, N. Y., for course record, June, 1904. District of Columbia record; L. C. Wahl, 20 miles, 1h. 2m. 42s., July 4, 1894. District of Columbia record; C. D. Cutting, Elgin, Aurora century course, on 40m. 45s., Aug. 12, 1894. course record; A. Lejeune, 10 miles, 4m. 24s., Sept. 1, 1904. Pennsylvania State record; Nat. Taylor, 50 miles, 4m. 25.5s., Sept. 22, 1894. Massachusetts State record; T. T. Mack, 200 miles, 14h. 2m. 4s., Sept. 27, 1894. American record.

Johnson Again at the Records.

John S. Johnson, the phenomenal cyclist, did not let the grass grow under the wheels of his bicycle after arriving at Chillicothe, O., but on Nov. 2 he took a crack at the one-third mile figures from flying start, paced, reducing them from 34.5s. to 32.5s. He also cut the half mile record from 53.5s. to 51.5s. The former records for these distances were held by Harry Tyler.

HARRY C. TYLER, in a time trial at Waltham, Mass., on Nov. 1, rode a third of a mile in 32.5s., which is 2.5s. faster than the previous world's record.

W. A. PARKER, the Texas cyclist, claims to have ridden a bicycle half a mile, unpaced, on the road, in 32s. The performance, it is stated, was accomplished in a time trial at Waco on Nov. 2.

BILLIARDS.

Schafer vs. Ives.

The final deposit of $1,000 a side in the billiard match between Jacob Schafer and Frank Ives was today in the hands of genial Maurice Day, "everybody's friend," last week, Ives putting up his own greenbacks and Dick Roche doing likewise for the "Wizard." The match is to be played at Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, Nov. 10 and 11, and, judging from the brilliant work each principal has been doing during their long and steady practice, the match should prove a most interesting and memorable struggle, and will perhaps upset some existing records. That it will at least prove full houses nightly goes without saying, for the work hours of the metropolis are just about ripe for a passage with cues between these leading American exponents of the gentlemen's game.

EDWARD FOURNILL, the French billiard expert, on Nov. 1, made public his desire for a match with either Jacob Schafer or Frank Ives in the billiard billiards, for $500 a side, the winner to take all after paying expenses, and the game to be 3,000 points up. He stipulated that the game should be played on a Brunswick table, the one in use at the time, after the coming match between Schafer and Ives. The latter promptly replied that he would play providing the match be made for $2,500 a side, on that date, or he would play for $1,000 a side and loss for choice of table.

FOURNILL, the expert from La Belle France, managed to defeat Maurice Day in a 500 point game at the latter's billiard parlors in Brooklyn, N. Y., one evening last week. The score at the finish was: Fournill, 200; Day, 70. Fournill's average was 22.73; Day's, 22.73. High runs—Fournill, 111 and 82; Day, 80 and 70.

H. O. MESSIER, the well known pedestrian manager, and "cowboy" Smith engaged in a two mile walking match, for $50 a side, at the Washington Avenue Roller Skating Rink, Minneapolis, Minn., on the evening of Thursday, Nov. 1. The first mile was made by Smith in 7m. 45s., and the two miles were completed first by Messier, in 15m. 11s. About five hundred persons were in attendance. The same parties were afterwards matched to walk ten miles for $100 a side, at the Opera House, Little Falls, Minn., evening of Nov. 9.

THEATRICAL.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston.—So far as any change of attractions go at the majority of our regular theatres, there will be nothing of importance for week of Nov. 3. "Sawing the Wind" keeps on space in its successful run at the Columbia Theatre where it seems to grow in favor with every performance.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.—The announcement of the opening of Boston's new amusement, the Castle Square Theatre, has been made by Manager E. E. Rose, the first of the fixed being Nov. 12. The entire first week's proceeds will be turned to the benefit of Boston Lodge of Elks. The attraction for the first week will be "The Engineer," a new play, a romantic play from the pen of Mr. Rose, and which has been in constant rehearsal for weeks past. It is a marine drama in four acts and deals with the adventures of a young American privateer captain on the coast of Brazil, where the scenes are laid in the eighteenth century. The play will be given a large amount of scenery, on which the artists are now at work, under the supervision of scenic artist Sidney Gindley. The attraction sale of seats for the opening week will take place in B. F. Keith's old Gaiety Theatre.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—Manager Rich announces the last week of "The Brownies." The piece has drawn great business to the theatre, and the Empire Theatre Co., in "Liberty Hall," its first presentation in this city.

PARK THEATRE.—Eddie Foy, as a star in "On the Earth," has made a distinct and unequalled success. The piece has drawn great business to the theatre, and the Empire Theatre Co., in "Liberty Hall," its first presentation in this city.

BOSTON THEATRE.—"In Old Kentucky" has drawn business of monster proportions to the Boston, and its hold grows stronger the more one sees of it. It is still running, and booked for a long term eventually.

HOWARD SQUARE THEATRE.—"The Cotton King" reigns triumphant at Manager Atkinson's house, and is now running along to excellent business and with the slightest hitch in the working of its elaborate scenic and mechanical effects.

BOSTON MUSICAL.—"Prince Pro Tem" shows no sign of abdicating his throne at the Museum, where his reign has been abnormally brilliant thus far, and promises to continue to be more so.

NEW BUSINESS is introduced weekly, and Dan Daly, as Justice, has made a most pronounced hit. This musical fantasia is one of the brightest and best of its class ever presented in Boston, a fact fully attested by the crowds that throng the house at every performance.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Jas. Connor Roach's engagement in "Rory of the Hill," at the Grand, opened shakels of money to Manager's box office, and a warm verdict of approval from those who saw his artistic impersonation of a true blue, full-blooded, genuine typical Irishman. This week, Jas. O'Neill, in "Monte Cristo," supported by Marie Durand as Mercedes and a capable company. Next week, Mr. O'Neill will appear as Virginius, Kelly and Don Carlos.

TRAMONTA THEATRE.—Rice's Surprise Party, in "1492," has done a fair business at the Tremont, and will be presented for one week more only. This historical extravaganza has been very popular, and its success has been very noticeable. The piece has been very popular, and its success has been very noticeable.

STONK'S MUSICAL.—A troupe of grizzled bears will be seen in the lecture hall here this week (Nov. 6), also the baby gorilla Gumbo Jr. Gumbo Sr. (having died last week); Mlle. Garetta's trained doves, the Pith Bull, the Pith Snake, and Ivan Orloff, the Russian peasant, in his descriptions of life in the land of the Czar. On the stage: Ritchie and Ritchie, Schuyler and Nash, May Lawrence, Sisters Norman, the Marions, James Neary, Crowley, L. W. Steinfeld, Buffalo, N. Y., for course record, June, 1904. District of Columbia record; L. C. Wahl, 20 miles, 1h. 2m. 42s., July 4, 1894. District of Columbia record; C. D. Cutting, Elgin, Aurora century course, on 40m. 45s., Aug. 12, 1894. course record; A. Lejeune, 10 miles, 4m. 24s., Sept. 1, 1904. Pennsylvania State record; Nat. Taylor, 50 miles, 4m. 25.5s., Sept. 22, 1894. Massachusetts State record; T. T. Mack, 200 miles, 14h. 2m. 4s., Sept. 27, 1894. American record.

JOHN S. JOHNSON, the phenomenal cyclist, did not let the grass grow under the wheels of his bicycle after arriving at Chillicothe, O., but on Nov. 2 he took a crack at the one-third mile figures from flying start, paced, reducing them from 34.5s. to 32.5s. He also cut the half mile record from 53.5s. to 51.5s. The former records for these distances were held by Harry Tyler.

Duel of Hearts, to Manager E. E. Rose, of the Castle Square Theatre. Another melodrama, by S. J. Kane, and "The Cotton King" at the Boston Square Theatre.

WORCESTER.—At the Worcester Theatre the only performances of the week were "On the Mississippi," which had good houses Oct. 29, 30, "The Old Homestead," Nov. 6, "Pavane" (Nov. 12-14), "The Old Homestead," Nov. 15, "The Old Homestead," Nov. 16, "The Old Homestead," Nov. 17, "The Old Homestead," Nov. 18, "The Old Homestead," Nov. 19, "The Old Homestead," Nov. 20, "The Old Homestead," Nov. 21, ## NEW PLAYS.

"Ups and Downs of Life."

Oliver Brown's new play, "Ups and Downs of Life," written by F. A. Scudamore, and Americanized by Mr. Brown, was played for the first time at the Drake Opera House, Elizabeth, N. J., Nov. 2. The play is of the melodramatic order, in four acts. The plot is laid in England. Constance is the daughter of a deceased banker, who has left a long list of unpaid bills and a renegade son, Noel, who has a mania for the race track, which leads him to forge the name of Crowcourt, a rich but unscrupulous contractor, who asks the hand in marriage of Constance. He is repulsed, but in a threat to send Noel to prison Constance consents to become his wife, but she is rescued by her brother, Ransome, an architect, to whom Constance is betrothed. Vivian marries Constance while Crowcourt forges Noel, and while scheming to add Constance to Australia, pretends to be friendly to the bride and groom. Constance falls to love Vivian, her scapegoat brother and keeps the subject a secret. Crowcourt calls in Vivian on business and shows him a letter which Constance had received from her brother. Vivian goes with Crowcourt to Portsmouth, but returns later in the evening to find his wife bending over the drunken form of her brother who has called. Vivian, who does not know of the existence of the brother, becomes friendly with the man, and an exciting scene follows. A box of gold and valuable, tossed in the air by Vivian as he discovers his wife, and turns her out of the house while he rushes from the dwelling, is picked up by Noel and is later lost at the race track. Constance roams the streets and is met by Crowcourt who takes her to a cheap lodging. Vivian, who is about to sail for Australia, asks for lodgings in the same house. Here he meets Noel, who, in his drunken mutterings, mentions Constance's name. Noel recognizes Vivian and tells him it was he who was on the floor of his house with Constance. Vivian seizes Noel by the throat, but he escapes through the door carrying a lighted lamp. Vivian shoots at him, when the lamp is shot out and the man is set adrift. Noel rushes back in the flames and tells Vivian that he is Constance's brother. Vivian learns that Constance is about to be abducted on the same steamer on which he was about to sail. In the last act he rescues her at the steamer's dock. The cast: Vivian Ransome, Oliver Brown; Jeffrey Crowcourt, Spotswood Aiken; Noel, R. Fulton Russell; Alphonso Smith, Ned Warren; Robert Brown, W. J. Burke; Moses, J. L. Mason; Mr. Dawkins, John Young; Ben Watson, W. J. Wood; Sam Flinch, R. Lee Atton; Constance, Ella Van Etta; Mrs. Waship, Alice Warren; and Jane Jenkins, Kate Byron.

"Arlone."

This two act opera, by John J. Reagan and Fred Happe, was produced for the first time on any stage at the Auditorium, Spokane Falls, Wash., Oct. 19. The story hinges on a will made by an eccentric grandfather. The will provides for the marriage prior to a certain date of a person then unknown. That person transpires to be Arlone, the central figure of the piece, and the consequence of non marriage means financial ruin of her family. Arlone, who is a failed actor, falls in love and becomes betrothed to a naval officer, who is later reported lost at sea. At the time approaches for her marriage, Arlone, despondent at the loss of her lover and seeking the comfort she may derive from saving her family, she determines to accept the offer of the sailor, who seeks her, and she is about to take this step when the lost one returns.

HIS FIRST CASE.

The young man had just been admitted to practice at the bar. He sat within the bar enclosure, speculating upon the chances of clients coming to him, by mistake or otherwise. He heard his name spoken, and started to his feet. "Mr. De Novo, the prisoner at the bar is unable to employ counsel. Will you defend him?" "Certainly, your Honor. May I retire with him to the bar office for a few moments' consultation?" "Yes, sir; and give him your best advice." A hardly perceptible sneer curled his Honor's lips as he uttered these few words, but the young man did not appear to notice it. Motivated for the prisoner to follow him, he passed into the other room. The door was closed, and for ten minutes the lively clatter of many conversations filled the court room. Then the young man strode into the room and dropped into a chair. The judge proclaimed, "Silence in the court room!" His Honor gazed up on the young man, and said: "Are you ready to proceed?" "Are you, your Honor?" "Where's the prisoner?" "I really don't know." "What?" "I'm sure I don't know." "Mr. De Novo, will you explain what you mean by this most extraordinary conduct?" "Your Honor told me to give him the best advice I could, I believe." "May I please the court, when I consulted him I found he was guilty, and had ready to defend whatever. So, in pursuance of your Honor's so kindly meant suggestion, I advised him to drop out of the window, and make himself as scarce as possible. I presume, in fact, I know, that that was the first part of my advice, and I believe he will also observe the rest of it."—Harpers Monthly.

"THE PIONEER OF '57,"

with original, new and beautiful scenery

WANTED to hear from the very best A No. 1, first class repertoire people that are ready to do their duty, at all times in a pleasant and capable manner. All people must be ladies and gentlemen that take a pride in their appearance on the stage as well as on, neat dressers on the street, paying particular regard to their make up and wardrobe on the stage. We will not permit any unreasonable fault finding. Disorganizers, or those addicted to excess in drinking will be discharged without notice. Let all persons who desire to make application read well these particulars for they will be closely observed and diligently lived up to. We will treat our people justly, pay their salaries promptly, but we will manage our business ourselves, and all we ask is for the ladies and gentlemen to attend to their own duties and not cause trouble, with such conduct everything will be satisfactory.

WANTED, a First Class Emotional LEADING LADY, with above requirements; also LEADY, capable to play either Heavy Juvenile or Character parts; could like her to have, if possible, a pretty CHILD about 6 to 10 years old in one of the plays; a young and attractive SINGING AND DANCING SOURETTE that knows how to sing good parts, with here and there bits of pathos, as well as bright and catchy comedy; a good All Round COMEDIAN, that can play a good, neat German Character, and can introduce singing and dancing specialties; the late J. K. Munroe order, good ITALIAN PLAYER, that can play Small Parts, and a few other USEFUL PEOPLE. We want people to take into consideration the hard times. People that want an engagement where their salaries are sure, but they must be down to BOTTOM ROCK at least until times get better. We are out to make money, not to lose it, and the expenses must be lower than receipts. We wish to live and let live—that's all. State in first letter what you are willing to do, in, hear the leading wait song of the day.

We pay your board and traveling expenses, also pay board rehearsal week. Season opens on or about Nov. 10. Rehearsal at Milton, Mass. Would like to see your photo; will return them. Address,

A. Z. CHIPMAN,

Stage Director American Theatre Co., Milton, Mass.

Catching On.

THOSE SIX NEW SONGS OF

Felix McGlennon,

Author of "And Her Golden Curls," "He Never Cares to Wander," etc. etc. They are catching on in great shape. Have you got them yet? Here they are.

"Call Her Gently, Soft and Low" (A dandy.)

"I'm Afraid Not." (S. and D. for the ladies.)

"She Will Never Be Friendless Again." (Fine.)

"Sweet Jennie Adair." (Beautiful Scotch melody)
